

Reasons to Choose WREB Exams

We realize you have a choice when it comes to testing agencies. Below are some of the top reasons indicated by past Candidates and Faculty for choosing WREB.

Immediate onsite results

No waiting to hear you passed! Our electronic scoring improves the exam process and allows immediate results onsite. Official results posted online (in 72 or less to Candidates and WREB-Member State Dental Boards)

Onsite retake session available at every exam

A very small percentage of Candidates do not pass on the first attempt. If a Candidate is unsuccessful, the option to retake the exam alleviates the stress of waiting, re-registering and traveling to another location. NEW FOR 2019 – No fee for onsite retakes of the Dental Hygiene Exam.

Friendly and responsive staff

Our WREB office and onsite staff are here to serve! We understand and quickly respond to student and faculty needs.

Extensive licensure portability with conveniently located sites scheduled throughout the year

WREB offers over 60 exams to choose from and is always expanding. We work closely with our sites to ensure a smooth exam experience.

Professional liability coverage

WREB provides Candidates with professional liability coverage with the limit amount of 1,000,000/$3,000,000 at no charge for the duration of the examination.

Simple online registration and payment

Visit WREB.org to find site information and quickly register and pay both exam and host sites fees.

Consider these important reasons when choosing a testing agency. It's the little things that often make the biggest differences.

Feedback from past Candidates who attempted WREB exams:

“The WREB exam is executed with great organization. There is so much stress in preparing and completing the exam, that any other stresses would be detrimental. WREB does a great job of having staff and examiners that are reasonable and calming, which helps with the whole process.”

Examination Overviews

Below is a brief overview of the various examinations administered by WREB. For more information, refer to the current WREB Candidate Guides available via the Exam Preparation page of WREB.org website.

Dental Hygiene Examination

The purpose of the Dental Hygiene Clinical Examination is to evaluate your ability to utilize professional judgment and clinical competency in providing oral health care to a Patient.

Clinical aspects of the examination include:

- Patient qualification
- Extraoral and Intraoral evaluation
- Calculus detection and removal
- Tissue management
- Periodontal assessment
- Professional judgment

Local Anesthesia Examination

The WREB Local Anesthesia Examination has a separate Written and Clinical component. Not all state licensing boards require a local anesthesia examination for dental hygiene licensure or for dental hygienists to administer local anesthesia. Some states require both a written and clinical exam while other states require only a written exam. The burden of responsibility lies on the student to comply with the local anesthesia licensure requirements for any state in which they seek to practice.

Written Component subject matter includes:

- Anatomy (head and neck) and physiology
- Pharmacology of anesthetic agents and vasoconstrictors, including the clinical actions and maximum recommended doses of specific agents
- Method of delivery of local anesthesia, including armamentarium, selection of injection type, and administration technique
- Medical history interpretation; prevention, recognition, and management of possible complications, and life support

Clinical Evaluation

The purpose of the WREB Local Anesthesia Clinical Examination is to evaluate your ability to utilize professional judgment and knowledge to competently administer a posterior superior alveolar (PSA) and an inferior alveolar (IA) nerve block injections on a Patient.

Restorative Examination

The purpose of the WREB Dental Hygiene Restorative Examination is to evaluate your ability to utilize professional judgment and competency in providing restorative procedures as allowed by state statute.

The WREB Dental Hygiene Restorative Examination consists of the placement, carving and finishing of one (1) Class II amalgam and one (1) Class II composite restoration on a typodont. The assignment consists of one mesioocclusal (MO) and one distocclusal (DO) maxillary and mandibular molar preparation.

Extensive Exam Preparation

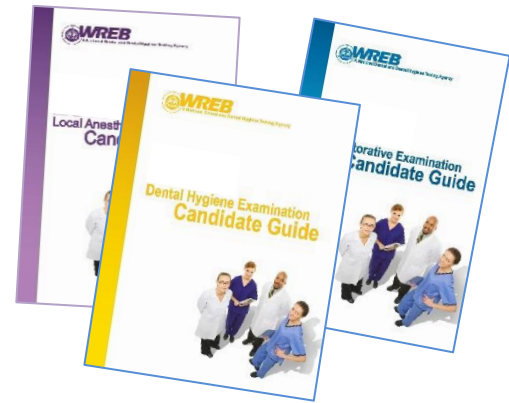

WREB provides students and faculty access to comprehensive exam preparation materials.

Candidate guides: All the necessary information about WREB policies, criteria and procedures for the exams

Online Candidate tutorials: Valuable insight into the clinical examination process, used in conjunction with the respective Candidate Guides

Q&A session with the Chief Examiner: Allows Candidates a chance to address last minute concerns prior to their exam

Optional clinic tour (following the Q&A Session): Candidates familiarize themselves with equipment, supplies, etc.

Visit the Exam Preparation page of the WREB website to review the current WREB Candidate Guides, examination forms, self-tests and Clinical Tutorials.

Pre-Exam Webinars for Students

WREB conducts pre-exam webinars, including a question and answer session, for students. Feedback from both faculty and students alike has been extremely positive. Schools interested in joining a webinar during 2019 are encouraged to contact Robin Yeager at ryeager@wreb.org.

One Student's Observations of Dental Hygiene Exam

Evelyn Ibarra Leon, Dental Hygiene Student at Moreno Valley College, Moreno Valley, CA

As an incoming first-year student for Moreno Valley College Dental Hygiene Program, I was ecstatic to begin my academic journey that would allow me to develop myself into a giving and compassionate healthcare professional through a career in the field of dentistry. As a student, I developed study methods that have contributed to my success in the program. Once senior year approaches and boards become a major concern, there is a lingering fear of the unknown. I realized that my knowledge of the Western Regional Examining Board (WREB) process was somewhat limited. The program devotes a great amount of time to prepare second-year students for the WREB through mock boards which eases that fear of the unknown. Nonetheless, we, as students, want to know every detail to facilitate our success. I was fortunate enough to have been selected as the dental hygiene student observer for the WREB 2018 exam season.

I selected Herman Ostrow School of Dentistry of University of Southern California to observe the WREB Dental Hygiene Exam. I was invited to attend orientation which allowed me to truly soak-up every detail possible and experience what the exam process will be like when I take the WREB. At orientation check-in, WREB candidates were asked to show two valid identifications, in order to receive their candidate packets. The packet included all necessary paperwork such as a calculus, dental hygiene patient medical history, patient consent and assumption risk, patient continuing, local anesthesia dosage, patient submission sheet, and candidate assignment forms.

During orientation, the Chief Examiner discussed how to fill out the paperwork and provided important tips on what is expected from students. In addition, the Chief Examiner reminded Candidates to study the WREB Dental Hygiene Examination Candidate Guide since it details everything a candidate will need to know prior to his or her exam. Being prepared and organized facilitates the testing process and creates less stress for the candidates. Any questions that the WREB candidates had were addressed and further discussed during orientation.

When the big day arrived, I was excited, nervous, and anxious to observe the entire process. Upon arrival to the exam site, a WREB site coordinator was there to introduce me to the WREB Examiners and to answer any questions that I may have. I had the privilege of joining the Examiners for breakfast. During breakfast, the Examiners explained the evaluation process and why the candidates and Examiners do not come in contact. This is to avoid any biased test results, as the dental hygiene community is extremely small and some students might know the Examiners. After breakfast, the Chief Examiner took me on a tour of the exam site, showing me the dental units, the check-in and check-out stations, and more.

I then able to observe the sequence of events and allowed to ask any questions along the way. First, the candidates greet their patients and escort them to their assigned operatories. The candidate performs an extraoral and intraoral exam on their patient, prepare all the necessary armamentarium that the exam site has provided, such as gauze, topical for anesthesia, anesthetic carpules, Listerine and more. Once the candidate has completed a thorough extraoral and intraoral exam on his or her patient, an explorer, probe, and mirror were placed in a sterilizing bag and placed on a tray provided to the candidates. Next, the candidates signed-in on a clipboard once they felt they were ready for check-in. I was allowed to observe the first check-in. During this process, the Chief Examiner checks all paperwork is filled out correctly and checks the radiographs provided by the candidate. The patient is dismissed from the candidate's operatory and escorted to an Examiner station. This is where the patient is evaluated by an Examiner to determine if the patient qualifies for the WREB. Once the patient was qualified, the patient is escorted back to the candidate's operatory. The patient hands back the candidate's tray with his or her instruments and the candidate form. The form will now have the "start-time" and "stop-time" portion filled in, which indicates the time allotted to anesthetize, probe, and scale the candidate's teeth submission. During the exam, the Chief Examiner played music, which created a less stressful environment for the candidates. I thought it was a great gesture because music is often times used as a tool to relieve stress for most individuals. Once the candidate scaled to completion, his or her patient walked to the check-in desk with the candidate's form, tray and explorer, probe, and mirror placed in a sterilizing bag, prior to the "stop-time" noted by an Examiner. While the Examiners were evaluating the patient, the candidate was breaking down their operatory, bagging their own instruments, and disinfecting the operatory. The candidate then returns to the patient waiting room area to wait for their results.

The opportunity for a first-year student to observe the WREB was a positive and unforgettable experience. The knowledge and tools I gained was immeasurable to succeed at the WREB exam. As class president, I created an informative presentation, in which I shared my experience with my classmates and faculty. I want to thank Robin Yeager, Director of Dental hygiene Operations, for giving me this opportunity. Class of 2019 no longer fears the unknown and we are ready to tackle second-year and succeed on our future boards!

One Student's Observations of Local Anesthesia Exam

Edelweiss Torres, Dental Hygiene Student at Salt Lake Community College, Salt Lake City, UT

I had the chance to observe the Anesthesia WREB exam at Utah College of Dental Hygiene. It was a great experience from beginning to end. I wasn't quite sure what to expect and was nervous to observe such a big exam. I can't imagine what it must have felt like for the candidates!

The Anesthesia exam happened to be during the week that I was starting my second year of hygiene school at Salt Lake Community College. It was perfect timing because I knew that three weeks into the beginning of second year, we start injecting our classmates. It was a great opportunity to watch injections over and over.

Once the exams had started going, I was floating around from candidate to candidate watching the process. By the end of it, I had a very good understanding of how the boards will go when the time comes for me to take the exam. I know how stressful this exam is for the candidates, so I tried to keep my distance because they're already dealing with two Examiners leaning in, watching their every move. I didn't want to add more to that because I know I'd want the same thing if it were me. The Examiners were great. They provided a relaxing environment and were very nice to me and to the candidates. They were doing their best to eliminate as much stress as they could which I thought was very appropriate and kind of them.

I'm very grateful to have had the opportunity to observe the Local Anesthesia WREB exam. I'm glad that they allow students to observe. It's extremely helpful and makes the idea of boards seem less daunting in the near future.

Advice from Past WREB Candidates

Dental Hygiene Clinical Examination

- Read your Candidate Guide more than once. You will be familiar with all paperwork, requirements, and feel more comfortable.
- Fill out forms early. Make sure to attend the clinic tour. Watch the WREB tutorial.
- Bring snacks, fruit, water, a blanket and anything else your patient may appreciate. The day is long, the clinics are cool (but stress and hard work can make the candidates and examiners warm).
- Double-check radiographs for criteria, dates
- Don't forget to bring two valid forms of ID
- Time Management is your friend.
- WREB was so helpful and made everything easier to understand.

Local Anesthesia Examination

Written:

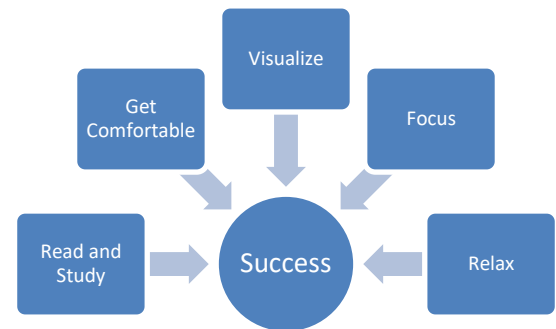

- Study the references and chart; know dosages, medical history contraindications, complications, and anatomy
- Notify the Proctor or Floor Technician right away if you have computer difficulties.

Clinical:

- Relax. Try to stay calm. Think positive. Examiners know you are nervous.
- Go online and watch the tutorial.
- Read the Candidate Guide several times before the exam.
- Get Comfortable. Get a syringe that fits your hand; bring double of everything.
- I believe that WREB knows how stressful these exams are and testers gave every effort to see us succeed without compromising the validity of the test. It truly helped.

Restorative Examination

- Read and re-read the Candidate Guide.
- View the online tutorial, it was a huge help.
- Time yourself often when practicing for restorative. Time goes quickly. Be organized and efficient.
- Practice carvings and having to remove a carving.
- Know what to do if your marginal ridge breaks.
- Attend the clinic tour to familiarize yourself with the clinic layout, equipment, etc.
- Bring your own triturator; it makes a difference.
- Remember to bring a box or container for your Typodont.
- Take a much-extended restorative course; not one that only lasts several hours or just a weekend.

Advice from WREB Staff

- Direct all technical questions to hygieneinfo@wreb.org
- If sharing a Patient, you must notify us via email by the application deadline in order for us to schedule appropriately
- If you need to change any personal information (name, address, etc.) within your profile, please email us
- Can't encourage you enough to go online and view the Candidate tutorials prior to your Q&A session and clinical exam

WREB staff wants you to succeed and we are here to help!

Examination Integrity

Sharon Osborn Popp, Ph.D., Testing Specialist/Psychometrician

The line between appropriate and inappropriate test preparation practices seems to have gotten blurrier in recent years. The best test preparation approach is to have a strong command of the knowledge, skills, and abilities required to be successful on the examination and enter professional practice. Unfortunately, the pressures associated with high-stakes tests can lead some people to be tempted by short-cut preparation approaches that they may not even realize are unethical or unlawful, including memorizing or sharing confidential, unreleased test questions. Here are a few reasons why you should avoid inappropriate test preparation practices.

Reason #1: Examination Outcome

If the examining agency obtains evidence that a Candidate may have engaged in unethical test preparation activity, it can invalidate that Candidate's score and prohibit the Candidate from taking the examination again. All WREB Candidates must agree to not disclose test questions or other examination-related materials. Any evidence that suggests a violation of this agreement can lead to score invalidation.

Reason #2: The Profession

Evidence of unethical test preparation can lead to review by the licensing entity in the state(s) in which a Candidate hopes to practice. Professional licensing entities protect the public and the profession by determining that individuals are qualified and ready to enter practice. Unethical test preparation undermines the validity of the examination and the licensure process.

Reason #3: The Law

Sharing or using unreleased questions and asking others to share unreleased questions is against federal copyright law, which protects examinations and related intellectual property. If someone tries to sell or share "real" test questions with you, they have either obtained them illegally or they may not actually have "real" questions. If the questions are authentic, you risk becoming a party to criminal activity. If the questions are not authentic, you may be wasting time and money reviewing test preparation materials of dubious quality. If someone asks you to share information from an examination, you should not agree to reveal the specific content or context of confidential test questions.

You may share whether you felt the exam was challenging or not, whether you felt prepared or not, or how you felt about general topic areas from the exam.

Engaging in inappropriate test preparation can jeopardize your test results, your professional status, and your legal status. Test preparation that focuses on knowing the test content, not memorizing specific test questions, is always the best way to prepare.

Prometric Enforces Security

Prometric enforces stringent inspections of questionable items and accessories, such as eyeglasses and jewelry. This preventative measure seeks to eliminate the potential for devices that could capture exam content in compromising the integrity of the examination. Candidates are encouraged to leave any questionable items at home or in a secure locker onsite to avoid entry delays or risk forfeiture of their WREB Comprehensive Treatment Planning examination attempt. The following items will be inspected more thoroughly prior to admission and re-entry into the secure testing area:

PROMETRIC

Items subject to close visual inspection:	Items to LEAVE at Home or in Locker provided:
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Eyeglasses (removed for inspection) • Wedding and engagement rings • Earrings • Facial piercing jewelry (i.e. labret studs) • Hair accessories (i.e. clips, barrettes) 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Sunglasses • Ornate hair accessories (i.e. clips, combs, barrettes, headbands) • Watch or wearable technology • Cell phone

If a candidate is caught with a camera or other capture device in their possession...

- Prior to entering the testing room, the item will be confiscated and the test attempt forfeited.
- While in the testing room, the item will be confiscated and the exam terminated.

Prometric strives to provide all test takers the "opportunity to demonstrate their knowledge, skills, and abilities" by ensuring "a fair and professional testing environment." Refer to the Testing Center Regulations page of the Frequently Asked Questions section of the Prometric website for more information.

The WREB Dental Hygiene Department

It’s always helpful to put a face to a name. When you receive correspondence from WREB, there’s a real person behind it. Robin Yeager oversees all dental hygiene exam operations, assisted by Phelecia Cook-Gyder. Exams are assigned to one of the dental hygiene coordinators—Lori, Sarah, Kathy, Emily and Tawanda—who expertly prepare all exam materials and correspond with Schools, Examiners and Candidates.
